Houston Women's Caucus for Art (HWCA) believes in the power of art. We believe the creative process can educate, reveal truth, heal wounds and enrich life.

HWCA creates opportunity for art to be seen, evaluated and sold. We develop educational forums on issues of interest to artists, our members and society as a whole.

HWCA is an all-volunteer, artist-run organization. Through positions of responsibility and mentoring relationships, our members develop valuable career and community skills, including financial management, public relations, non-profit administration, electronic publishing, and large-scale project management.

HWCA is a 502(c)(3) organization, active in Houston for over 20 years. HWCA is affiliated with the national Women's Caucus for Art (New York) and more than forty state chapters throughout the United States.
